

Capital Wings

We're all getting out and about now - on weekend run outs, to Wing Dings and on holiday, exploring and partying. A regular on Sundays for Capital is Finchingfield and also a trip to North Weald Airfield in Epping Forest - to have some breakfast and to see what has flown in. It's an operational general aviation aerodrome so on any day there can be a surprise. Bev's visit coincided with one from a Spitfire and Al relived his naval days when a Wasp helicopter buzzed in. Apparently, this actual helicopter served in the Falklands when Al was there - what a coincidence and a thrill nearly forty years on.

Capital's Wingnuts are now all young ladies and are either completing their education or moving onto training courses in order to pursue their chosen careers. Daz and Sarah said goodbye to Georgia in April as she left home to join the British Army Training Camp for a future in the King's Troop, Royal Horse Artillery.

Daz complained at the time about how much washing she had left behind but he was as thrilled as everyone else when Georgia had her passing out parade in July. Al and Chloe were there to support Georgia's parents through the tears of pride with boxes of hankies.

We all send our congratulations to Georgia and wish her success in her new career. Hopefully, we'll see her around London when there is a ceremony to watch.

You may have seen 'Five Go Mad in Dorset', the first of three Five Go Mad specials from the long-running series of 'The Comic Strip Presents...' television comedy films. Well, it should have been 'Twelve Go Mad in Dorset' as a group from Capital got together for a camping holiday in Dorset in August. Previously planned holidays to France had all been cancelled due to Covid so they were looking forward to a few days away in the UK, 'chillin'. Obviously there was lots of planning involved, particularly ordering the right number of cows for the BBQ and deciding where to visit once camped. Nudist beaches somehow came into the conversation at our last Mole Night and Studland was mentioned. Any news on the success, or otherwise, of the holiday will have to wait until October as the deadline for this month's submission looms.....

It's a short and sweet Report this time. No input equals little output. Happy travelling.
